13	Human Resources	Workday	GOAL MANAGEMENT: What is the difference between Performance Goals and Development Goals?	We identify two types of objectives (goals): 1. Performance goals (refer to the WHAT) 2. Development goals (Development, which refer to the HOW). Performance goals can be set according to each Job Family and Job role, and are significant to the overall success of the Company. As of this year, our individual goals must be aligned with the 4 Strategic Drivers of our Strategic Narrative, which you will find uploaded to Workday as "Organizational Goals." Development Goals refer to skills and competencies acted upon that support people's performance and development. On Workday they can be linked to one of our 4 Behaviours. Remember that for the 2024 Goal Setting you will need to include between 5 and 8 goals (including at least 1 development goal).

14	Human Resources	Workday	GOAL MANAGEMENT: What are organizational goals (Organizational Goals)?	There are 4 Organizational Goals, they relate to our 4 Strategic Drivers (Most Meaningful Solutions - Most Impactful Advisors - Future-proof Foundations - Best Talent Growth) and define the priorities we need to work in order to achieve our Purpose.
